

TANTIA UNIVERSITY
JOURNAL OF HOMOEOPATHY
AND MEDICAL SCIENCE

Editorial

Approach in Homeopathy

Homeopathy is a healing protocol using combination of constituents whose effects when directed to healthy individuals correspond to the clinical presentation of the pathology in the individual subject. Homeopathy is an alternative medical practice in which extremely dilute amounts of certain natural substances are used to treat various pathologies. Homeopathy is not a plausible system of treatment, as its dogmas about how drugs, illness, the human body, liquids and solutions operate are contradicted by a wide range of discoveries across biology, psychology, physics and chemistry made in the two centuries since its invention. The use of homeopathy as a preventive for serious infectious diseases is especially controversial in the context of ill-founded public alarm over the safety of vaccines stoked by the anti-vaccination movement. Hence; this journal aims for encouraging and publishing various advancements in the field of homoeopathic medicine.

Dr. Charanjeet Singh

Dean,

Sri Ganganagar H. Medical College,
Hospital and Research Institute, Tantia
University, Sriganaganagar